The text is a narrative about King Louis XII of France, detailing his reaction to his cousin Charles VIII's treatment of him. It also includes a passage from Colossians 3:12-14, which encourages believers to practice compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience, and to forgive others as God has forgiven us. The text reflects on whether individuals hold grudges and whether they are only punishing themselves.